STUDIES OF FRESNO DAN ANSWERING SEVEN IDENTITY TESTS

Fresno Dan went in Fresno in August 1903, he said. He picked up a gun every pick-up man.

"No," he said, "I have picked a man in the street."

"Well, I haven't," but he didn't.

Schardon tried to get Fresno Dan to recall how he went to the postoffice. He referred to a "wonder" through which he passed.

"A wonder," repeated Schardon, "What do you call the Russell estate now?"

"Well, I haven't thought it over much."

"Recall any blacksmith shop in Fresno in 1903?"

"Yes, Network's was a blacksmith."

"When was that?"

"I don't know the date, but I heard something like that."

"Doesn't that seem strange to you that the postmaster says Dakota Dan is the real Daniel Blake Russell?"

"No, I can't say that it is very strange," Fresno Dan said.

"There are resemblances between you and Dakota Dan?"

"No, there doesn't look to be."

Schardon tried to get Fresno Dan to recall the street he traveled as a boy. He caught up the witness by telling him there was a Harrington street there.

"That's all you know there is as such street here?"

"Well, you told me."

FRESNO DAN AGAIN
FACES LEGAL BATTERY

He has rejected life into this battle for a vast name and inheritance.

Fresno Dan, according to his own story, which he repeats today, doesn't care very much for a name. What he wants is the money. A role by any other name would just as well be in the same California. In his wanderings through the West he took any name that came handy. Anderson came handy first. Then that sounded too Swedish, so he took Johnson, which was just about as Swedish, but he didn't know it.

The front row Dakota Dan cohorts were on hand here. It was a little money in the courtroom and the witness waved that away. Some of them carried lunch boxes.

Real Millinery Show.

But where is cheerful Mrs. Mary Murray? The case can't go on without this faithful out.

The crowd grows larger. Now Fresno Dan draws, now bats. It is quite a merry window.

With white, white and black; dress you and dress in yellow; of some style there is no lack.

At 9:30 Fresno Dan and his drooped into the second row from the door behind Mrs. Ferdinand Almy. Mrs. Almy chatted with him. She wore black with a white straw hat trimmed with black velvet. A tall feather of white with a black fringe drooped straight from the front of the hat like a weaver's expression. In the same seat with her is a pretty girl wearing a big straw hat with a round black band. It was told that she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Almy. Mrs. Almy is one of the associates of the Russell estate.

Enter Dakota Dan.

Thus it appeared that Fresno Dan sat on the left, facing the judge's bench, and the Dakota Dan on the right. At three o'clock of 10 o'clock a glance of Dakota Dan. His black string tie is caught in an unusual knot today. Yesterday it was unbuttoned and sagged away from the collar.

Who listens to the battling word of Fresno Dan, with pale un- stirred. And enters Schardon's man or wife?

NANCY BOB.

This Dan looks lively and cheerful. He shows gum. He takes his own seat at one of the counsel tables, prepared to make a few points.

A man of about Dan's age stepped up, spoke to him and gave him a card. They talked earnestly. Mr. Kelly mentioned in and took a seat opposite to Mr. Nancy. Mr. Kelly so far has done a thinking part. He is Fresno Dan's personal counsel, but Mr. Schardon has barred him from participation in the case.

Mr. Nelson, who spends a lot of time making sketches on a piece of paper, has a new tie. It is a look of dark red, with a little light stripe.

PEERLESS TRUCKS
Work Overtime without Fatigue

During a rush of summer business, this 4-ton Peerless truck was used sixteen hours a day for over two months, and did the work of four two-horse teams. Normally it replaces three teams in the delivery of about 450 cases a day, including the return of the empties. Its daily average is forty miles over city pavements.

Its performance has been so satisfactory that the Roessle Brewery has installed a 5-ton Peerless for the delivery of beer in barrels.

After a Close Set

THERE'S nothing so satisfying in summer as Cliequot Club Ginger Ale, especially when one is heated. Its delicate, thirst-quenching taste (without the throat-burning qualities of other ginger ale) and its purity and wholesomeness make it popular with both men and women. It mildly stimulates, leaving one refreshed and satisfied.

Cliequot Club
GINGER ALE

Only the best ingredients go into Cliequot Club—the best extra grade of granulated cane sugar, choice ginger root—the only of the select lines and lemon. The water—crystal-clear and pure, from the deep Cliequot Caves—is noted for its fine carbonating quality. "Cliequot Club" Ginger Ale is as good as ginger ale can be. There are no preservatives or chemical preparations used in it.

Other Cliequot Club Beverages:
Sarsaparilla Birch Beer
Root Beer Lemon Sour

At the better class grocery stores by the case, dozen or bottle, or a price which amounts to about 15¢ per glassful.

Mayor Fitzgerald was blamed for his alleged indifference in not bringing about a settlement of the strike, and the politicians of this city were severely arraigned at the meeting of the caucus in Vernon Hall. Twelve hundred attended.

Friday Specials
in the shadow
of the new store.

BOSTON FOLKS may well be interested in the big new Gilchrist store that is nearing completion, for it is directly responsible for savings that would be impossible if we didn't have to keep up business volume in only part of a store. We've got to give better values than the other stores and Boston women know it—that's why the Gilchrist aisles are more crowded than ever and why Friday Specials have an added bargain force. We are naming prices here that would be unwarranted under different conditions.

BOMBARDIER WELLS, heavyweight champion of England, will be given another opportunity to prove his worth in a ring over the class with a new and very strong bout at New York tonight. Wells came to this country several months ago with a wonderful reputation, but he failed to make good in his first contest on this side of the big pond.

Wells' opponent in his only bout on this side of the Atlantic was the former champion from Iowa. Palmer sent Wells to the mat for the fatal count after three rounds of unexciting fighting. Wells was not able to rough things with Palmer, but he proved that besides being a sterling boxer he is also a very tough fighter. Palmer sent the mat on two different occasions, but

The bout tonight is sure to be replete with excitement. Both Kennedy and Palzer are fast, shifty boxers, and as game as they make them. Kennedy is well known to New England fight "fans." He fought a twelve-round draw with Sandy Ferguson at the Pilgrim A. A. and his willingness to mix things and his great speed made a hit with the "fans."

The winner will be matched to meet Palzer. Kennedy has already met Palzer on two different occasions. Palzer won the first bout by a knockout in nine rounds, while Kennedy got a draw in the second encounter.

SONS RETURN TO DIGHTON 200TH

More Money for Shoppers

Last "Style" Photographs

DIGHTON, July 18.—Dighton is thronged with visitors today who are watching the 200th anniversary of the founding of the town. Many of the people from the country who have just been back to Dighton in years, returned to view a "style" in their old home town.

The town is gaily decorated, every public building and most of the dwellings being with American flags and red, white and blue bunting. Streams of different colors hang from the trees and blue and white streamers and flags float in the air.

One of the most handsome decorated buildings is the public library on Main street, which is the headquarters of the general committee. Aside from the committee every flag the face of the citizens hangs in the town. The date of founding of the town, 1712, and in the other year, 1912, and a large number of the townspeople are in the streets and on the sidewalks. It is estimated that 2,000 persons have seen the flag of the town and other sights of the town since the celebration.

Refined to make the celebration, and to see the town from the town. The town is a beautiful sight, and the town is a beautiful sight.

More money for shoppers. The American store in defense of Boston, money, "style" to almost closed. The store which has been submitted to the town, money, "style" to almost closed. The store which has been submitted to the town, money, "style" to almost closed.

SEE 'GREEN PARASOLLADY' AT REVERE AND GET $100

The American Parol today has a photograph of "The Lady With the Green Parasol".

Examine this picture carefully. Would you know her if you met her on the street?

Would you recognize her if you knew that she would be at a certain place at a certain time and a day with "The Green Parasol"?

Study the picture carefully. Impress on your memory every detail of her face and figure.

The man, woman or child who identifies her will receive from the Boston AMERICAN a reward of $100 in gold. The same identical woman whose picture is printed today will be at Revere Beach next Sunday. She will stroll along down beach street.

May Be Seen by All. The fact that she will carry a Green Parasol in plain sight, should make the task of identifying her comparatively easy.

Can you identify her? If you think you can, you are very foolish not to try. One hundred dollars is a reward for her capture. Some one will undoubtedly get it. Who? Not you? Work for the picture of "The Lady with the Green Parasol" in tomorrow's AMERICAN.

REWARD!

$100

For the Capture of this Woman

She'll Be At REVERE BEACH Next Sunday

Can you identify her? If you think you can, you are very foolish not to try. One hundred dollars is a reward for her capture. Some one will undoubtedly get it. Who? Not you? Work for the picture of "The Lady with the Green Parasol" in tomorrow's AMERICAN.
